SWITCHING RATES IN CONTROVERSY

Charges Made to Patrons of Rural Telephone Companies Attacked In a Rehearing Here.

COMPROMISE EFFORT FUTILE

Commissioner McCordle Suggested That Phone Rates in the City Be Advanced.

A rehearing relative to switching charges for patrons of rural telephone companies connecting with the Seymour exchange was held at the city building today before John W. McCordle, a member of the Indiana commission. When the present telephone rates were fixed by the commission last December the switching charge was increased from 50 cents a year to 25 cents a month. The farmers claimed that they did not have notice of the previous hearing and contended that the new rate is excessive.

The commission then arranged for a rehearing of this part of the case. McCordle said that the rehearing was granted upon the commission's own initiative after a motion had been filed by Edward P. Elsnor, attorney for the farmers.

Before the hearing was called to order this morning, McCordle asked for a conference with the representatives of the different farmers' lines and with John A. Shields, president of the Seymour Chamber of Commerce. At this conference McCordle is said to have proposed that a reduction be made in the switching rates for rural lines and that the difference be added to the rates in Seymour. Mr. Shields refused to consider such a proposal, declaring that the fixing of rates was a question for the commission to decide on the basis of investment and revenue and that he did not feel that he had any authority to agree to such a compromise.

The hearing was called to order formally about 1:15 o'clock. Mr. Elsnor contended that the telephone company should present the first evidence, but the commissioner held that the farmers were the plaintiffs in this hearing and the company had not asked for any revision.

Mr. Elsnor then explained that there were ten rural lines connecting with the Seymour switchboard. He gave in detail just what the rural properties consisted of in the way of poles, switchboards, wire and other equipment. He said that the farmers received no compensation for long distance calls over the independent lines and that the entire commission went to the local company.

A number of witnesses were then called to the stand to testify for the farmers. The hearing was in progress late this afternoon but an effort was being made to complete the evidence today.

FIRE COMPANIES ARE ORGANIZED

Fire Department Responds to False Alarm at Nelson Furniture Factory Today.

TRUCK MAKES FAST TRIP

Employees of Factory Given Opportunity to Try Out Fire Fighting Organization.

The Seymour fire department made the fastest run in its history this morning in response to a false alarm which was sent in from the Nelson furniture factory located on East Second street. Mead Downs, one of the drivers, was at the wheel and the fire truck made the distance of eight blocks in one minute and five seconds, the alarm having been turned in exactly at 11:45. The truck was stopped and the firemen were unloading the hose ready for action at five seconds after 11:46 o'clock.

The purpose of the run was to give the fire companies at the furniture factory which have recently been organized an opportunity to go through the maneuvers preparing for a real fire. The plan to turn in the false alarm was known only to the city mayor and Melvin Jerrell, fire chief and Charles Stevens, superintendent of the furniture factory.

The superintendent of the furniture factory has organized a fire company in each department in the plant. One man is captain of each department and gives all orders for fighting fire in case a blaze would break out at the plant. Two blasts by the factory whistle sounds the fire alarm to the employees and each is assigned a post when the call is sounded. The factory is equipped with fire extinguishers and has small fire hose connections throughout the plant that are ready for use at a moment's notice.

The employees are much interested in the plan and take pleasure in performing their special duties as members of the factory fire companies. The men were all at their posts this morning when the Seymour fire department arrived on the scene ready for action. The employees are distributed throughout the entire plant and a certain number of men are assigned to stations on the roof. With the splendid organization and equipment it would be almost impossible for a fire to gain much headway in the factory during the day when the employees are all at work.

The Nelson company has provided several features of amusement for the benefit of their employees. The men this afternoon started work clearing off a ball diamonds on the company's lot and a baseball team will be organized immediately. Several outdoor events for the employees are being planned during the summer months.

Sylvanis Carr, an employee of the factory was sworn in as a police officer by Mayor C. W. Burkart, who attended the fire drill this morning, at the request of the factory superintendent. Mr. Carr will have police powers on the company's premises.

SEWER QUESTION TO BE DISCUSSED

Considerable Time to be Given to Proposition at Chamber of Commerce Meeting Monday.

VARIOUS VIEWS EXPRESSED

Large Attendance Desired as Open Forum Will be Conducted—Special Election April 23.

The proposal that a new sewerage system be built in this city will be discussed at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to be held at the city building Monday night. This will be the first opportunity that has been afforded the citizens to discuss the matter in a public way since the council decided to hold a special election on Friday, April 23, and the officers of the organization desire a large attendance. It is pointed out that the sewerage project is one of great interest to every citizen in Seymour and that the residents ought to participate in this meeting.

The election has been called by the council for the purpose of deciding if a majority of the people here desire the construction of a sewerage system at an estimated cost of $250,000. The question is left to the public in rather an unusual manner, it is pointed out, and there are some difficulties that must be ironed out before many people are ready

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP FARMER DIES SUDDENLY

William Bishoff Succumbs to Short Illness—Funeral Tuesday Afternoon.

William Bishoff, a widely known Washington township farmer, died at his home near Dudleytown at 5 o'clock this morning following a short illness. The deceased was born January 11, 1859, and was sixty-two years old.

Mr. Bishoff's death was a shock to the community in which he lived as he had apparently been enjoying the best of health. He was in this city Friday afternoon transacting business. He was taken critically ill about 9 o'clock Friday night and death followed a few hours later.

CANDIDATES FOR DELEGATES FILE

Republicans and Democrats in This County Each Entitled to Twelve Representatives.

MUST FILE BEFORE PRIMARY

Names Will Not Appear on Ballots.

Candidates for delegates to both the Republican and Democratic state conventions have been filed with Frank L. Schornick, county clerk. The primary law provides that delegates shall be elected in the primary election but the names of unopposed candidates will not appear on the ballots. While all other candidates before the primary were required to file not later than last Saturday the date for delegates did not expire until today.

Each party will be entitled to twelve delegates this year. The distribution of delegates is based on the vote in the various precincts and for this reason the districts are not confined to precincts and townships. The Republican candidates for delegates are:

COMPLETE REORGANIZATION OF NAVY RECOMMENDED

Democratic Senators Declare Subcommittee Exceeded Its Authority.

By United Press. Washington, April 10.—Recommendation for a complete reorganization of the navy will be made by the senate sub-committee which has been investigating Rear Admiral Sim's charges, it was decided today. The sub-committee of the naval committee which has been conducting the probe came to this decision by a strict party vote. Senator Pittman and Senator Trumbull, Democratic members, announced they would protest to the full committee that the sub-committee has not authority to go beyond an investigation of Sim's specific criticism which was that the navy department's refusal to cooperate with him prolonged the war.

"I don't propose to see the sub-committee exceed its authority for the purpose of dusting off a political issue," said Pittman. If the sub-committee is sustained by the full committee a sweeping program for enlarging the navy and reorganizing the bureaus and offices of the department may be laid before congress.

SENATE STRUGGLE MAY BE PROLONGED

Fight Over Adoption of Resolution of Peace May Not End for Several Weeks.

CLOSE VOTE IS ANTICIPATED

Mild Reservationists Control Situation as Democrats Are Solid in Opposition.

By United Press.

Washington, April 10.—Senate leaders today were prepared for a long and bitter struggle over the peace resolution passed late yesterday by the house.

Senator Lodge chairman of the foreign relations committee said he would call the committee to consider the measure as early next week as convenient. Lodge and other Republican leaders expect the resolution to pass eventually by a close vote, but the margin is so narrow that a change of one or two in the next few weeks might spell defeat for the measure.

Senator Knox, a Republican and Senator Hitchcock, the ranking Democratic member of the committee have left Washington and the date of Hitchcock's return at least is not definite. Lodge said he would wait until Knox gets back but would not promise to hold off action until Hitchcock returns.

Some of the so-called "mild reservationists" have begun a series of political maneuvers which if successful, will result in the "mild reservationists" voting against the resolution. As the Democrats will oppose it almost solidly according to Hitchcock and other administration leaders the "mild reservationists" control the situation.

Arguments on the constitutional question of the right of congress to pass such legislation promises to consume many days and more time probably will be used in going over all the old treaty ground. Opponents of the league of nations plan to use the French intervention in the Ruhr as an example of alleged failure of the League of Nations to function in the time of emergency.

Senator Hitchcock plans to offer the league covenant as an amendment to the resolution in an effort to embarrass Republicans. The Republicans will come back by presenting the result of the treaty as an amendment and demanding that the Democrats go on record for or against accepting the peace terms separately from the covenant.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT IS COLLECTING STRIKE DATA

Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen Ask That Injunction be Employed to Break Strike.

By United Press.

Washington, April 10.—Faced with many demands for immediate action, justice department officials today had not decided on their policy in regard to the outlaw railroad strike. Assistant Attorney General Ames who is in charge of the department's inquiry into this strike, said it would be impossible to make any public statement.

President Lee of the railroad trainmen demanded that the justice department employ the injunction to break the unauthorized strike, acting under the Lever act. Ames today was waiting for a report on the situation from District Attorney Clyne of Chicago. Whether the injunction can be used in the present strike is not yet determined. Justice department officials today had made no special arrangement to cope with profiteering which is becoming more than unusually acute in Chicago. New York and practically every city in which the strike is interfering with transportation of perishables.

The government will be forced to intervene in the outlaw railroad strike if it seriously interferes with transportation, it was said today at the White House.

STRIKE EXTENDS TO OTHER CITIES

Situation Reported "Easier" at Headquarters of Insurgent Organization in Chicago.

INDIANAPOLIS YARDMEN OUT

Food Supply in Many Cities Low, and Serious Shortage in Some Centers Feared.

By United Press.

The outlaw strike of railroad employees continued to spread today, although the situation was reported "easier" in Chicago at headquarters of the insurgent organization.

The strike extended to Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Pittsburg, Columbus, O., and other railroad centers. In New York the striking yardmen and switchmen were joined by firemen. Suburban service was badly crippled, railroad officials admitted. The roads were making every effort to keep through trains running. Trainmen in the Hudson tube, connecting New Jersey and New York, also walked out. Railroad managers and representatives of the railroad brotherhoods who were fighting the strike declared they expected to be able to break it today. They announced several crews which were first to strike in Chicago had returned to work.

Estimates placed the number of strikers at 25,000. Thousands of men were thrown out of work by closing of industrial plants unable to obtain fuel or raw material.

While the food supply in practically all cities affected by the strike was reported sufficient to last until the latter part of next week, a serious shortage was predicted in case the strike is not broken by that time.

Food prices were raised in some sections in anticipation of a shortage.

INDIANAPOLIS STRIKE

1,100 Switchmen and Yardmen Walk Out.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, April 10.—Indianapolis railroads were partially paralyzed today following a walk out of 1,700 switchmen and yardmen here. The men are striking in sympathy with Chicago switchmen and those in other parts of the country. Nine hundred walked out yesterday afternoon. Eight hundred struck last night and early today.

Representatives of the brotherhoods declared it is matter of letting the strike fever burn itself out. It had been demonstrated they said, that nothing is to be gained through the newly formed union. At the same time, they condoned the acts of some strikers, who they said, were made desperate by big advances in rents and food costs this spring.

The claim that difficulty in the yards here was abating was based on the fact that several crews headed by men who made the first strike threats returned to work. With the strike broken here brotherhood men said it would die out elsewhere.

An unofficial report was circulated that an agreement might be reached today if promises were made that wage increases to be granted later be made retroactive to April 1 and if the yardmen's association be recognized. Brotherhood officials said there was small chance for the latter.

The strike was expected to reach its crisis today according to railroad officials and brotherhood leaders.

By night fall, they said, they expected to be able to definitely announce that the backbone of the strike had been broken.

That the organized unions will fight the strike out to a finish without seeking government aid, was the statement here today of Heberling, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America. "Our union has a membership of 60,000 and less than a third of these have gone out" he said.

THE SUGAR SITUATION.

Local people have discovered during the last week that the retail sugar supply is limited. The commodity is practically off the market in some localities and the sales here are limited. The situation is said to be as acute as it was during the winter.

The prediction is made that sugar will retail from 30 to 35 cents pound before June 1. This high price will prove a hardship on the people of the country as the peak price will likely be reached at the height of the canning and preserving season. Usually the price is always a little higher in mid-summer than at any other time of the year and no exception is promised this summer.

Information that is available relative to the sugar market reveals that no actual shortage exists, but that the high price is the result of manipulation by speculators. Practically all the sugar in the United States is in the hands of speculators.

The government made a serious mistake when it endeavored to control the sugar market by refusing to contract for the Cuban crop. Failure to take over the Cuban supply forced the price of Southern sugar to a previously unknown figure. This condition caused the Cuban growers to boost their price. The speculators then saw their opportunity to control the entire market and contracted at a comparatively low figure. The wholesale price is now quoted at 15 cents a pound, f. o. b. New York, but wholesalers who have placed orders are informed that none is available at that figure. The wholesale price is around 20 cents a pound.

There is but one condition that should control the price of necessary commodities and that is the old law of supply and demand. Sometime, we know not how soon, the laws of the country will be so strict against speculation in foodstuffs that it will not be attempted. The need of such regulations is shown by the present sugar situation.

AMERICAN LEGION HOLDS REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING

Members Vote to Hold Banquet on April 22—Endorse Salvation Army Drive.

The regular monthly meeting of Seymour Post No. 89 of The American Legion was held at the city building Friday evening. Several important matters of interest to the local post were up for consideration. The committee to arrange for an Independence Day celebration was announced and Martin W. Steinwedel, the chairman, has called a meeting of that body for Monday evening at which time preliminary plans will be made. A number of sub-committees will be appointed in the near future to assist with the work.

The local post has endorsed the Salvation Army drive to raise funds which will be waged during the week of May 10 and all members will assist with the campaign in Jackson county.

The Legion voted to have a dinner at the New Lynn hotel Thursday evening, April 22. A committee composed of William Topie, Eli Shapero and Everett Murray was appointed to arrange for the dinner and entertainment.

NO CHARGE IS MADE FOR EXCHANGE OF LIBERTY BONDS

Thousands of Third Issue of All Denominations Sent to Federal Reserve Banks.

Holders of third Liberty Loan coupon bonds have started to exchange their temporary certificates into permanent bonds in the Seventh Federal Reserve District, according to the reports of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. As the returns are beginning to come in the officials of the Reserve Bank wish to reiterate the statement made in March, when the first exchanges were made, that there is absolutely no charge to the bond holder for the exchange.

"The government makes no charge for the exchange of temporary into permanent bonds" said a Federal Reserve Bank official. "The temporary ones may be surrendered through banks and trust companies and forwarded by them to the federal reserve bank. The new bonds will be delivered at the expense of the United States. The bank wishes to make this point clear to all holders of Liberty bonds so they will know officially that no bank has the right to charge anything for effecting the exchange."

In this district there is outstanding approximately $502,000,000 of the third loan bonds, dated May 9, 1918 and maturing September 15, 1928.

To this issue there were close to 3,450,000 individual subscribers.

The reserve bank has supplies of the permanent bonds of the first and second 4s and first and second 4 1/4s. In round numbers, there is $518,000,000 of these four classes of bonds outstanding in this district.

In making exchanges on the first and second 4s the treasury department has ruled that deliveries of permanent bonds will consist of first and second 4 1/4s, unless the holder specifically requests otherwise. As there is no advantage in possession of the 4 percent bonds, it is expected that by making exchanges in this manner they will be practically eliminated from the market.

The first 4s represent conversions of the first 3 1/2 percent Liberty Loan bonds to the 4 percent bonds of the second Liberty Loan. The second 4s are the original second loan. There is every advantage in converting these to the 4 1/4 percent bonds of the third Liberty Loan, as they retain their original maturity dates.

The first 4s have been without an interest coupon since last December; the second 4s since November. This interest will be fully adjusted on the exchange into permanent bonds.

URGES PEOPLE TO FIGHT CATARRH WITH SIMPLE HOME MADE REMEDY

Can Make Pint at Home and Costs Little, Says Leading Druggist of Covington, Ky., Who Has Made Special Study of Catarrh.

Says: Inflamed Nostrils Invite Influenza

People who say that catarrh is a disease not to be taken seriously are harshly rebuked by a Kentucky druggist who has for years been much interested in the growth of this loathsome, yet altogether too common disease.

He claims that the sore, tender, inflamed membrane of the nostrils and throat is a prolific breeding ground for germs—not only the germs of Influenza, but many other kinds as well.

If people would only stop experimenting for two weeks and try a simple remedy made of Mentholized Arcine mixed with enough boiled water to make a full pint, half of the catarrh in this country would be abolished. It's really no joke for people who don't know about this simple recipe to be constantly sniffing and snuffing, blowing and hawking, when all these obnoxious symptoms as well as the foul discharge can be made to disappear in a few days.

Ask for three-quarters of an ounce of Mentholized Arcine—that's all you need and after you have mixed it with enough boiled water to make a pint, gargle the throat twice daily and snuff or spray some up the nostrils, as directed.

The tender nostrils will soon lose their soreness, heal up, and be clean and healthy.

Important Reminder: Just as soon as anyone in the family gets a cold in the head, check it at once with this same medicine.

A pretty Easter wedding was solemnized Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock when Catherine, daughter of Mrs. Kate R. Watson, was united in marriage to Leland Thompson Hadley, at the home of the bride's mother.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Budman Fleming, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The impressive ring service was used. Only members of the immediate families were present. Before and after the ceremony, the bride-groom's sisters, Helen and Miriam, played appropriate violin and piano numbers.

The bride is a most charming and popular young woman. She is a graduate of the Rensselaer high school and studied Dramatic Art at the Chicago Musical College under the direction of Mrs. Letitia V. Barnham.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Hadley, of Chicago, a graduate of Earlham college, Richmond, Ind., class of 1917, and took graduate work at Chicago University. He spent two years in service in France and is at present teacher of French in the Rensselaer high school.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Hadley, Helen and Miriam Hadley and the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Stratton.

Individual House Dresses

There is more and more a tendency for house dresses of individual design, because women realize that morning dresses can be pretty as well as practical. And to get away from the factory wholesale look that many ready-made dresses and aprons have, milady fashions her own. With remnants of percale, gingham, print poplins and voiles, and such trimmings as lawn, pique, braid, buttons, and stitching, many truly charming and original and yet inexpensive little frocks can be made by the woman who likes her clothes to be just a "little different."

One attractive morning dress is made from a couple of lengths of cretonne patterned with pale yellow birds and flowers. A sort of yoke and bib effect of plain yellow gingham formed the top of the one-piece design, and was outlined with two rows of black cable stitching. A group of three or four tiny black buttons marked the center front down from the little round neck. The edges of the short kimono sleeves and the outline of the neck were also finished with this same cable stitching. The effect of the whole frock was yellow with black trimmings—surely something pleasingly different for a house dress. A reversal of gingham and cretonne was seen in a lavender frock made all of lavender gingham with sleeves and yoke at the top, all cut in one piece, of flowered lavender and pink cretonne. Rickrack braid comes in many widths and colors just now, and can be used very effectively to get pretty color contrasts in morning dresses. A plain pink gingham recently seen had a wide collar and cuffs of pink check, in inch squares, joined to the dress with black rickrack braid about half an inch wide.

The hip pockets that extend outward to give the peg-top silhouette, and so stylish for street dresses, are also useful and good looking for the house dress. Be sure to edge the pockets with a bit of trimming such as a bias fold of lawn, a crossing strip of plaid or white featherstitch or rickrack braid, as this gives a certain jaunty touch to the dress. Besides these pockets are really step savers, for they are actually big enough to hold a duster, keys or a purse.

The vest effect good with many frocks is likewise used in the morning "one-piece." White, of course, always gives a certain refined daintiness, and if the dress is cleverly designed, the vest can be removed separately, and a fresh clean one put

COATS CLEVERLY DESIGNED

Nothing requires more at the hands of their designers than spring coats, for they must be made to answer many purposes. The average, sensible woman buys one that will do for the street, for traveling and motoring and demands snappy style without too much emphasis in any one direction.

The new coats are usually three-quarter length and made in quiet colors of soft wools. Large pockets, ample collars and original ideas in construction give them character. This is illustrated in the coat pictured above, with sleeves and body cut in one and set on to a deep yoke, clever pockets and a narrow belt of patent leather. Models with much the same lines as this one, are made without belts and allowed to flare from the shoulders down. It is always safe to choose these loosely adjusted and roomy looking coats that hang much like a mantle on the figure.

YOUTHFUL STYLES IN SUITS

For those who look best in suits that are trim and simple the youthful style shown above will prove successful. It has a box-plaited skirt and a short, straight coat. The latter is very cleverly cut and depends upon round buttons in two sizes and a little silk braid for its embellishment. The collar is a small and inconspicuous detail.

in without requiring the whole dress to be laundered. White pique, poplin, or pin-tucked lawn makes simple but nice-looking vests. Tiny pearl buttons, either white or colored, in a group of two or three, are frequently used to trim with. Cross-barred muslin is a suggestion for vests and collars and cuffs with the crossbarred gingham which is a new popular fabric for these dresses. Blue and green are colors much favored. With voiles, which are used for the very daintiest of morning frocks, a white net edge with lace is used for the vest, yoke, collar, or guimpe that trims it. Organdie, too, of plain color is used to trim voile of plaid or figured design. Think how pretty crisp pink organdie collars and cuffs would look on rosebud voile. The charm of voile is its grace in draping, its sheer quality, and the practical tubbing ability of the variety known as Normandy voile.

Sometimes a three-color effect is used on the most up-to-date house dress. For example, one cheery "one-piece" of yellow, blue, and white plaid had a wide collar, cuffs and vestee of bright blue organdie embroidered with big white circles.

A narrow patent leather belt, is just as smart for the morning dress as the sports rig of scarf or sweater.

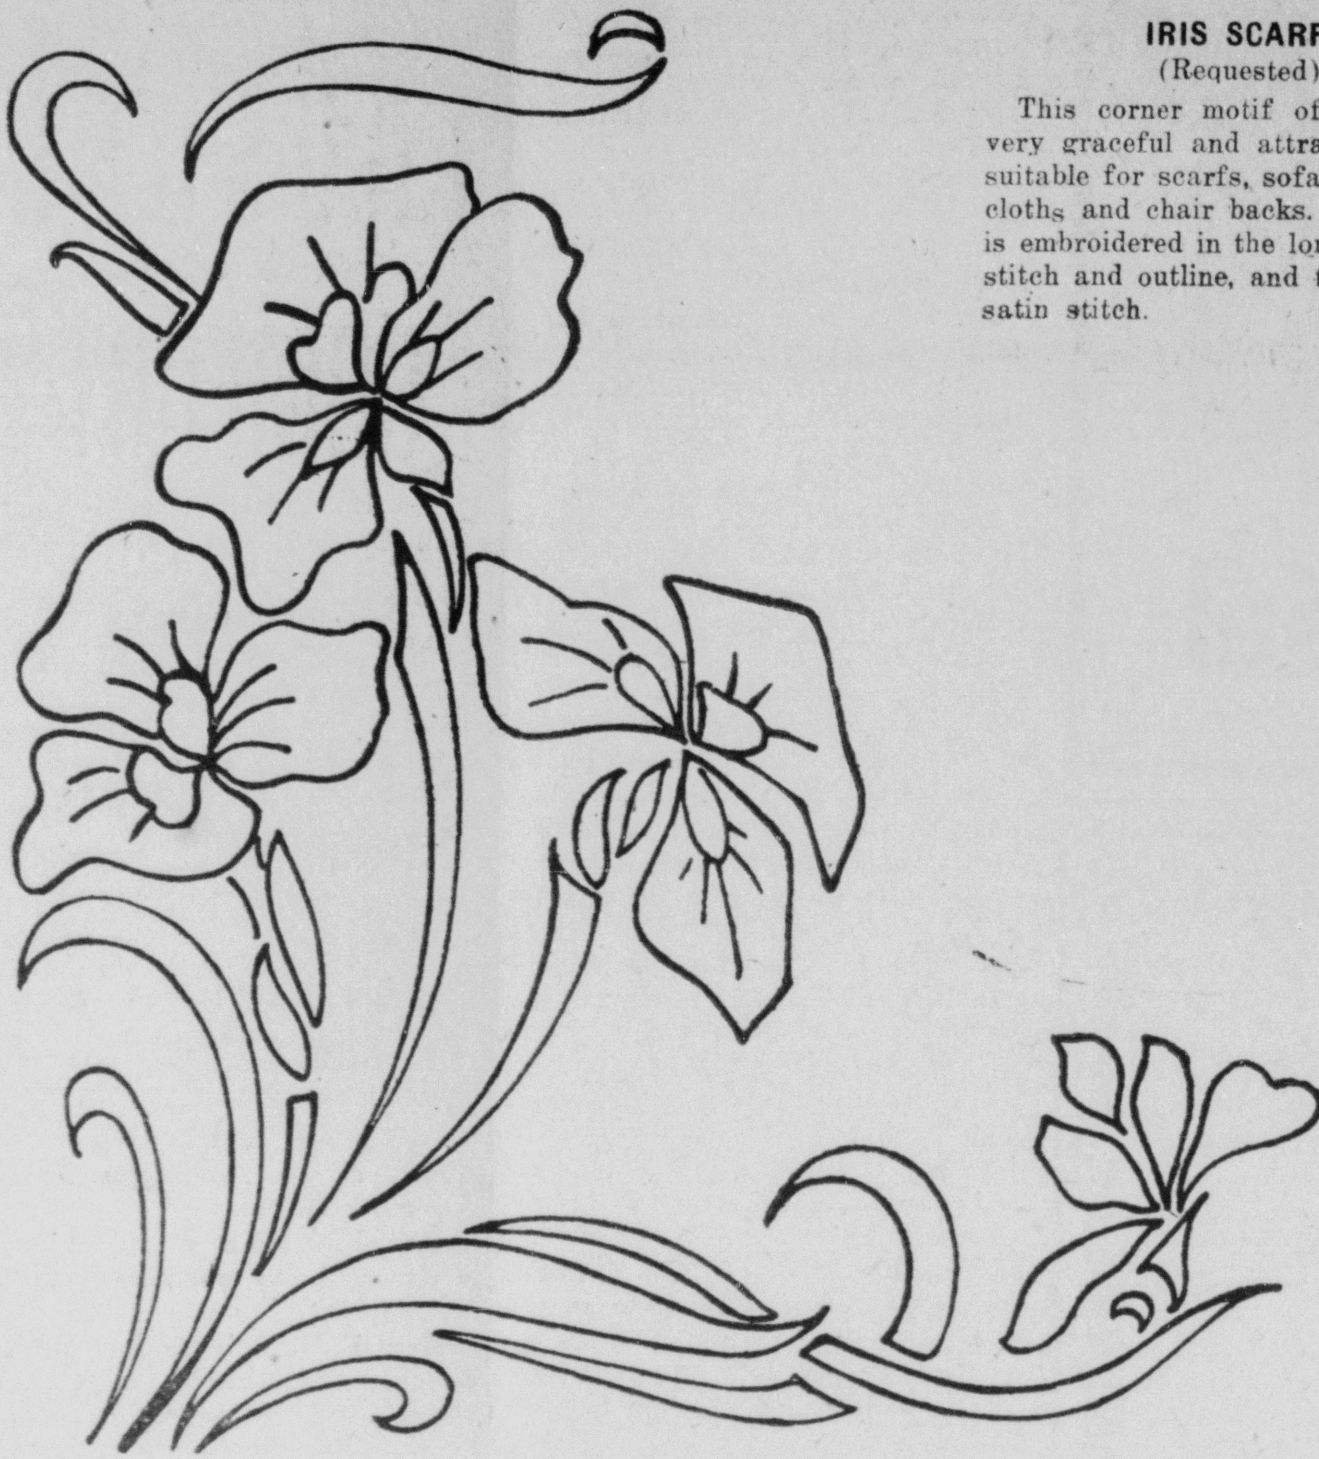

Soft gray is another both practical and feminine tint to wear for morning in the home. A bit of hand embroidery, which especially gives the individual touch to the house dress, will relieve it. Pink flowers with green leaves in a very simple one-stitch design edging the top of the vest and the collar and cuffs, are a suggestion. Little red dots embroidered in two or three showy places and accompanied by a red patent leather belt would likewise be effective. So, too, would be yellow and blue butterflies or violets on white collars. Other simple stitches for embroidering the house frock include featherstitching, crossstitch, outline stitch, French knots, buttonhole and blanket stitch. A very attractive hand trimming consists of black buttonhole stitch set with stitches half an inch apart, with a large French-knot in color, set in each little block.

And the final finish for the best morning frock is a softly draped girdle of charmeuse or taffeta. A simple black one can be hooked on half a dozen frocks, morning or afternoon, as required, and Alice blue, rose, or green will certainly add a great deal of chic to just a plaid gingham or simple voile.

Cheese Custard

The ingredients are: 1 cup of milk, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon of maple sirup or honey, 1 teaspoon of gelatin, 2 tablespoons of cold water, 1/2 teaspoon of vanilla, 1 cup of cottage cheese, salt. Heat the milk, pour it gradually over the beaten yolks of egg, add the sweetening, and cook the mixture until it coats a spoon. Soak the gelatin in the cold water; dissolve it by setting the cup in boiling water. Beat the white of egg until it is light, add the vanilla and the dissolved gelatin. Beat the mixture until it is very stiff. Fold this into the custard mixture. Chill the pudding. Just before serving it, add the cheese slightly salted.

ART NEEDLEWORK by Edith M. Owen

IRIS SCARF.
(Requested)

This corner motif of the iris is very graceful and attractive. It is suitable for scarfs, sofa pillows, tea cloths, and chair backs. The flower is embroidered in the long and short stitch and outline, and the leaves in satin stitch.

CENTERPIECE

This unusual shaped lace edge for a centerpiece is very pretty. It is especially so when crocheted in ecru No. 30 and using an ecru linen center. It is crocheted in the same manner as a yoke, the work commencing at the larger side, crocheted to the center then to one side, then the second side, the two sides joined again and finished, using a single crochet and picot edge.

CHAIR BACK.

A recent revival of the "Olden Times" is the dainty embroidered chair back. This motif is adapted to any chair cushion and is of the various field daisies of yellow, white and blue is loop stitch and French knots. The leaves of dark green are in outline or chain stitch.

Why Do We Use Copper Telegraph Wires?

One of the characteristics which distinguished copper in its color—a peculiar red. It stands next to gold and silver in ductility and malleability, and comes next to iron and steel in tenacity—which means the ability of its tiny particles to hang on to each other. That is why copper wire bends instead of breaking when you twist it. But that is not the only reason, although an important part of the reason, why we use copper for telegraph wires. Copper is an extremely good conductor of electricity when it is pure. So are gold and silver, but we cannot afford to buy gold and silver wires for the telegraph, telephone and other wires, and if we used such wires the cost of the equipment would be so great that we could not afford to have telephones in our homes. But there is a great deal of copper in the world and it is very cheap, and so it makes an ideal element for use in things through which electricity is to pass. When you compound it with other substances it loses some of its conductivity. Copper is used extensively in many ways in the world. This book is printed, for instance, from copper electrotypes. The whole business of electrotyping is based on the use of copper.

Why Does a Poker Get Hot at Both Ends if Left in the Fire?

Both ends of the poker become heated because the poker is made of iron, and iron is a particularly good conductor of heat. To understand this we must look into the question of what a good conductor of heat is. In this case the particles of iron, which combined form the poker, are so close together that when those at the end of the poker which is in the fire get hot, the particles at that end hand the heat on to the particles next to them, and so on until the whole poker is hot. The difference between a thing which is a good conductor of heat and a thing which is not a good conductor, lies in the ability of the different particles which compose it to hand the heat on to the others. Did you ever notice that the handle of a solid silver spoon will become hot if the spoon is left in hot coffee? Solid silver is a good conductor of heat. A plated spoon is not a good conductor, however, and will not become hot if left in the cup of hot coffee as a solid silver spoon will.

What Makes a Hot Box?

When you put oil on the axle, however, the oil fills up the hollows between the little irregular bumps on both the axle and the hub, and makes them both smooth—almost perfectly so. This reduces the friction and keeps the axle and hub from becoming hot and expanding. The less friction that is developed, the more easily the wheel will turn.

SMART SILHOUTTE FOR SUITS

CHAPTER I.

In the summer of 1850 a topsail schooner slipped into the cove under Trinidad head and dropped anchor at the edge of the kelp-fields. Fifteen minutes later her small-boat deposited on the beach a man armed with long squirrel rifle and an axe, and carrying food and clothing in a brown canvas pack. From the beach he watched the boat return and saw the schooner weigh anchor and stand out to sea before the northwest trades. When she had disappeared from his ken, he swung his pack to his broad and powerful back and strode resolutely into the timber at the mouth of the river.

The man was John Cardigan; in that lonely, hostile land he was the first pioneer. This is the tale of Cardigan and Cardigan's son, for in his chosen land the pioneer leader in the giant's task of hewing a path was to know the bliss of woman's love and of parenthood, and the sorrow that comes of the loss of a perfect mate; he was to know the tremendous joy of accomplishment and worldly success after infinite labor; and in the sunset of life he was to know the dull despair of failure and ruin. Because of these things there is a tale to be told, the tale of Cardigan's son, who, when his sire fell in the fray, took up the fight to save his heritage—a tale of life with its love and hate, its battle, victory, defeat, labor, joy, and sorrow, a tale of that unconquerable spirit of youth which spurred Bryce Cardigan to lead a forlorn hope for the sake not of wealth but of an ideal. Hark, then, to this tale of Cardigan's redwoods:

Along the coast of California, through the secret valleys and over the tumbled foothills of the Coast range, extends a belt of timber of an average width of thirty miles. In approaching it from the Oregon line the first tree looms suddenly against the horizon—an outpost, as it were, of the host of giants whose column stretches south nearly four hundred miles to where the last of the rearguard maintains eternal sentry-go on the crest of the mountains overlooking Monterey bay. Far in the interior of the state, beyond the fertile San Joaquin valley, the allies of this vast army hold a small sector on the west slope of the Sierras.

These are the redwood forests of California, the only trees of their kind in the world and indigenous only to these two areas within the state. Notwithstanding sixty years of attrition, there remain in this section of the redwood belt thousands upon thousands of acres of virgin timber that had already attained a vigorous growth when Christ was crucified.

In sizes ranging from five to twenty feet in diameter, the brown trunks rise perpendicularly to a height of from ninety to a hundred and fifty feet before putting forth a single limb, which frequently is more massive than the growth which men call a tree in the forests of Michigan. Scattered between the giants, like subjects around their king, one finds noble fir, spruce, or pines, with some Valparaiso live oak, black oak, pepperwood, madrone, yew, and cedar.

John Cardigan settled in Humboldt county, where the sequoia sempervirens attains the pinnacle of its glory, and with the lust for conquest hot in his blood, he filed upon a quarter-section of the timber almost on the shore of Humboldt bay—land upon which a city subsequently was to be built. With his double-bitted axe and crosscut saw John Cardigan brought the first of the redwood giants crashing to the earth above which it had towered for twenty centuries, and in the form of split posts, railroad ties, pickets, and shakes, the fallen giant was hauled to tidewater in ox-drawn wagons and shipped to San Francisco in the little two-masted coasting schooners of the period. Here, by the abominable magic of barter and trade, the dismembered tree was transmuted into dollars and cents and returned to Humboldt county to assist John Cardigan in his task of hewing an empire out of a wilderness.

Time passed, John Cardigan no longer swung an axe or dragged a cross-cut saw through a fallen redwood. He was an employer of labor now, well known in San Francisco as a manufacturer of split-redwood products, the purchasers sending their own schooners for the cargo. And presently John Cardigan mortgaged all of his timber holdings with a San Francisco bank, made a heap of his winnings, and like a true adventurer staked his all on a new venture—the first sawmill in Humboldt county. The timbers for it were hewed out by hand; the boards and planks were whipsawed.

It was a tiny mill, judged by present-day standards, for in a fourteen-hour working day John Cardigan and his men could not cut more than twenty thousand feet of lumber. Nevertheless, when Cardigan looked at his mill, his great heart would swell with pride.

"Here," said John Cardigan to himself exultingly when a long-drawn wall told him his circular saw was biting into the first redwood log to be milled since the world began, "I shall build a city and call it Sequoia. By to-morrow I shall have cut sufficient timber to make a start. First I shall build for my employees better homes than the rude shacks and tent-houses they now occupy; then I shall build myself a fine residence with six rooms, and the room that faces the bay shall be the parlor. When I can afford it, I shall build more houses. I shall encourage tradesmen to set up in business in Sequoia and to my city I shall present a church and a school-house. We shall have a volunteer fire department, and if God is good, I shall, at a later date, get out some long-length fir-timber and build a schooner to freight my lumber to market. And she shall have three masts instead of two, and carry half a million feet of lumber instead of two hundred thousand. First, however, I must build a steam tugboat to tow my schooner in and out over Humboldt bar. And after that—ah, well! That is sufficient for the present."

Thus did John Cardigan dream, and as he dreamed he worked. The city of Sequoia was born with the Argonaut's six-room mansion of rough redwood boards and a dozen three-room cabins with lean-to kitchens; and the tradespeople came when John Cardigan, with something of the largeness of his own redwood trees, gave them ground and lumber in order to encourage the building of their enterprises. Also the dream of the school-house and the church came true, as did the steam tugboat and the schooner with three masts.

At forty John Cardigan was younger than most men at thirty, albeit he worked fourteen hours a day, slept eight, and consumed the remaining two at his meals. But through all those fruitful years of toil he had still found time to dream, and the spell of the redwoods had lost none of its potency.

At forty-two Cardigan was the first mayor of Sequoia. At forty-four he was standing on his dock one day, watching his tug kick into her berth the first square-rigged ship that had ever come to Humboldt bay to load a cargo of clear redwood for foreign delivery. She was a big Bath-built clipper, and her master a lusty down-Easter, a widower with one daughter who had come with him around the Horn. John Cardigan saw this girl come up on the quarter-deck and stand by with a heaving-line in her hand; calmly she fixed her glance upon him, and as the ship was shunted in closer to the dock, she made the cast to Cardigan. He caught the light heaving-line, hauled in the heavy Manila stern-line to which it was attached, and slipped the loop of the mooring-cable over the dolphin at the end of the dock.

"Some men wanted aft here to take up the slack of the stern-line on the windlass, sir," he shouted to the skipper, who was walking around on top of the house. "That girl can't haul her in alone."

"Can't. I'm short-handed," the skipper replied. "Jump aboard and help her."

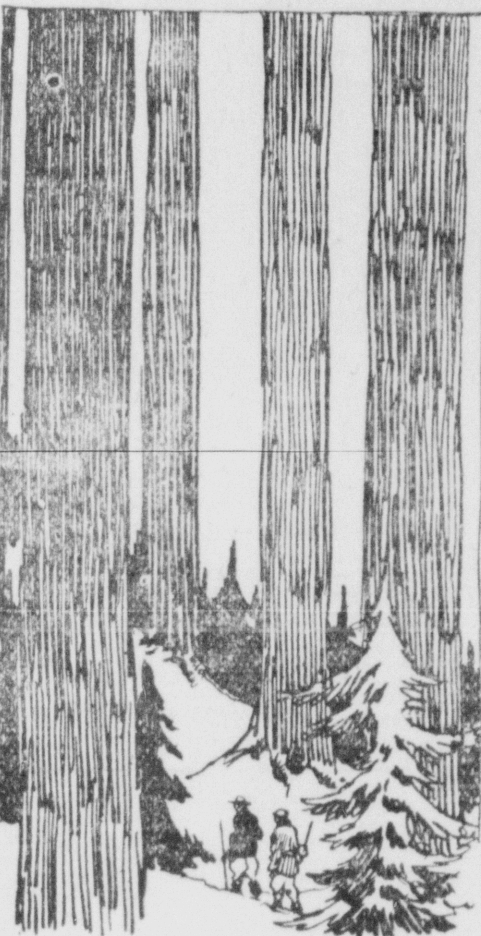

Cardigan made a long leap from the dock to the ship's rail, balanced there lightly a moment, and sprang to the deck. He inserted a belaying-pin in the windlass, paused and looked at the girl. "Raise a chantey," he suggested. Instantly she lifted a sweet contralto in that rollicking old ballad of the sea—"Blow the Men Down."

Round the windlass Cardigan walked, steadily and easily, and the girl's eyes widened in wonder as he did the work of three powerful men. When the ship had been warped in and the slack of the line made fast on the bitts, she said:

"Please run for'd and help my father with the bowlines. You're worth three foremast hands. Indeed, I didn't expect to see a sailor on this dock."

"I had to come around the Horn to get here, Miss," he explained, "and when a man hasn't money to pay for his passage, he needs must work it."

"I'm the second mate," she explained. "We had a succession of gales from the Falklands to the Evangelistas, and there the mate got her in irons and she took three big ones over the taffrail and cost us eight men. Working short-handed, we couldn't get any canvas on her to speak of—long voyage, you know, and the rest of the crew got scurvy."

"You're a brave girl," he told her. "And you're a first-class A. B.," she replied. "If you're looking for a berth my father will be glad to ship you."

"Sorry, but I can't go," he called as he turned toward the companion ladder. "I'm Cardigan, and I own this sawmill and must stay here and look after it."

There was a light, exultant feeling in his middle-aged heart as he scampered along the deck. The girl had wonderful dark auburn hair and brown eyes, with a milk-white skin that sun and wind had sought in vain to bleach. And for all her girlhood she was a woman—bred from a race (his own people) to whom danger and despair merely furnished a tonic for their courage. What a mate for a man! And she looked at him proudly.

They were married before the ship was loaded, and on a knoll of the logged-over lands back of the town and commanding a view of the bay, with the dark-forested hills in back and the little second-growth redwoods flourishing in the front yard, he built her the finest home in Sequoia. Here his son Bryce was born, and here, two days later, the new-made mother made the supreme sacrifice of maternity.

For half a day following the destruction of his Eden John Cardigan sat dumbly beside his wife, his great hand caressing the auburn head whose every thought for three years had been his happiness and comfort. Then the doctor came to him and mentioned the matter of funeral arrangements.

Cardigan looked up at him blankly. "Funeral arrangements?" He passed his gnarled hand over his leonine head. "Ah, yes, I suppose so. I shall attend to it."

He rose and left the house, walking with bowed head out of Sequoia, up the abandoned and decaying skid-road through the second-growth redwoods to the dark green blur that marked the old timber, up the skid-road recently swamped from the landing to the down timber where the crosscut men and barkpeelers were at work, on into the green timber where the woods-boss and his men were chopping.

"Come with me, McTavish," he said to his woods-boss. They passed through a narrow gap between two low hills and emerged in a long narrow valley where the redwoods grew thickly and where the smallest tree was not less than fifteen feet in diameter and two hundred and fifty feet tall. McTavish followed at his master's heels as they penetrated this grove, making their way with difficulty through the underbrush until they came at length to a little amphitheater, a clearing perhaps a hundred feet in diameter, oval-shaped and surrounded by a wall of redwoods of such dimensions that even McTavish, who was no stranger to these natural marvels, was struck with wonder.

"McTavish," Cardigan said, "she died this morning."

"I'm sore distressed for you, sir," the woods-boss answered. "We'd a whisper in the camp yesterday that the lass was like to be in a bad way."

Cardigan scuffed with his foot a clear space in the brown litter. "Take two men from the section-gang, McTavish," he ordered, "and have them dig her grave here; then swamp a trail through the underbrush and out to the donkey-landing, so we can carry her in. The funeral will be private."

McTavish nodded. "Any further orders, sir?"

"Yes. When you come to that little gap in the hills, cease your logging and bear off yonder." He waved his hand. "I'm not going to cut the timber in this valley. You see, McTavish, what it is. The trees here—ah, man, I haven't the heart to destroy God's most wonderful handiwork. Besides, she loved this spot, McTavish, and she called the valley her Valley of the Giants. I—I gave it to her for a wedding present because she had a bit of a dream that some day the town I started would grow up to yonder gap and when that time came and we could afford it, 'twas in her mind to give her Valley of the Giants to Sequoia for a city park, all hidden away here and unsuspected."

"She loved it, McTavish," twas our playhouse, McTavish, and I who am no longer young—I who never played until I met her—I'm a bit foolish, I fear, but I found rest and comfort here. McTavish, even before I met her, and I'm thinking I'll have to come here often for the same. She was like this sunbeam, McTavish. She—she—"

"Aye," murmured McTavish huskily. "I ken. Ye wouldn't gie her a common or a public spot in which to wait for ye. An' ye'll be shuttin' down the mill an' loggin' camps an' layin' off the hands in her honor for a bit?"

"Until after the funeral, McTavish. And tell your men they'll be paid for the lost time. That will be all, lad."

When McTavish was gone, John Cardigan sat down on a small sugar-pine windfall, his head held slightly to one side while he listened to that which in the redwoods is not sound but rather the absence of it. And as he listened, he absorbed a subtle comfort from those huge brown trees, so emblematic of immortality; in the thought he grew close to his Maker, and presently found that peace which he sought. Love such as theirs could never die. . . . The tears came at last.

At sundown he walked home bearing an armful of rhododendrons and dogwood blossoms, which he arranged in the room where she lay. Then he sought the nurse who had attended her.

"I'd like to hold my son," he said gently. "May I?"

She brought him the baby and placed it in his great arms that trembled so; he sat down and gazed long and earnestly at this flesh of his flesh and blood of his blood. "You'll have her hair and skin and eyes," he murmured. "My son, my son, I shall love you so, for now I must love for

GAVE HER STRENGTH

Mrs. Miller Says That is What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Her—Read Her Letter—

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was run down and nervous, could not rest at night and was more tired in the morning than when I went to bed. I have two children, the youngest three months old, and it was drudgery to care for them as I felt so irritable and generally worn out. From lack of rest and appetite my baby did not get enough nourishment from my milk so I started to give him two bottle feedings a day. After taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman, full of life and energy. It is a pleasure to care for my children and I am very happy with them and feel fine. I nursed my baby exclusively again and can't say too much for your medicine."

—Mrs. A. L. MILLER, 2633 E. 24th St., Minneapolis, Minn.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help this woman it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

two. Sorrow I shall keep from you, please God, and happiness and worldly comfort shall I leave you when I go to her." He nuzzled his grizzled cheek against the baby's face. "Just you and my trees," he whispered. "Just you and my trees to help me to hang on to a plucky finish."

For love and paternity had come to him late in life, and so had his first great sorrow; wherefore, since he was not accustomed to these heritages of all flesh, he would have to adjust himself to the change. But his son and his trees—ah, yes, they would help.

And he would gather more redwoods now!

to cast their vote. There is no doubt but that a new sewerage system is needed here, but whether this is the time to build it and whether the matter has been presented in a definite enough form will be considered.

Six months ago the Chamber of Commerce appointed a committee to confer with a council committee relative to sewerage relief. At that time the council had under consideration the expenditure of about $35,000 for new laterals and surface ditches and some members of the Chamber of Commerce felt that a definite sewerage policy should be adopted before such a sum was spent. The joint committee held a number of meetings and finally recommended the appointment of Charles A. Hurd, an Indianapolis engineer, to prepare a plan of the present system and to make suggestions as to the best methods of overcoming sewerage problems here.

The committee urges that the plan of the system be built and the report of the engineer be filed before definite action is taken on a new system which will be expensive. Others believe that the sentiment of the voters should first be known before such an expenditure is approved. The committee contends that their recommendation does not include the immediate construction of a new system, but would lead up to it, at the same time giving temporary relief. It is also pointed out that with a definite plan before it the council would be better enabled to permit extensions and connections which would conform with the permanent plan.

The various issues will be presented at the Chamber of Commerce meeting and it is hoped that all sections of the city will be largely represented. The action taken by the Chamber of Commerce which is representative of the whole city, will likely have a marked effect on the result of the special election and an earnest consideration of the matter is desirable.

Miss Katherine Frazee, librarian, went to North Vernon today to attend the dedication of the new library building, at two o'clock. An all day program was arranged. Miss Willman, of the state commission has been acting as librarian in North Vernon for the past six months.
